

Hey there horse enthusiast juniors and seniors!

Looking for internship credits?

Southwest Quarter Horse Association is looking for a student to help plan and facilitate horse shows on weekends at the Southern New Mexico Fairgrounds located outside of Las Cruces. The student will attend once-a-month board meetings (held in Knox Hall) and communicate with the SWQHA president and board to learn the administration and operation of the horse show industry.

The student will be able to network with industry professionals and leaders, as SWQHA is one of the most active horse associations in the region, and it draws competitors from not only New Mexico, but also Arizona, Colorado and Texas. If a student wants to be involved in multiple facets of the horse show industry and be around high-quality horses, this is the perfect internship. The organization is looking to have one intern from January to May and another from May through September.
